Canals & intimate rivers

Starting in the département, or county, of Savoie, at the foot of the Parc Naturel Régional du Massif des Bauges (also a UNESCO Geopark), this La Belle Via stage leads you along the banks of Lac du Bourget, France's largest natural lake, dotted with wine-making villages and the odd old fishermen's village. To begin with, choose from two possible starting points: the canal-side village of Chanaz, from where you can take a boat along the Canal de Savières down to Aix-les-Bains's Grand Port, passing under Lac du Bourget's unspoilt wooded western bank and below Hautecombe Abbey; or Aix-les-Bains, a thermal spa resort with a wealth of history going from Roman vestiges to Belle Époque villas. The cycle route then leads you southwards alongside the great lake, via an extremely scenic panoramic cycle path going down to Le Bourget-du-Lac. Lastly, following the greenway along the Leysse River – one of France's very earliest greenways – continue to the city of Chambéry, designated a Ville d'Art et d'Histoire, enjoying a cycle path much used by Savoyard locals who ride along it to get to and from work!

The Route

You can start this stage of La Belle Via cycle route in original manner, boarding a boat at Chanaz en Chautagne (also linked to the ViaRhôna cycle route) taking you on a mini-cruise down the Canal de Savières and then across Lac du Bourget to reach the Grand Port, the main harbour of the Aix-les-Bains Riviera des Alpes area. Getting back onto dry land with your bike, from the Grand Port, you first follow a stretch of La Belle Via (V63) that runs down the lake alongside the Promenade Lamartine, very soon joining the greenway called the Avenue Verte Nord that continues along the lake shore. Along this stretch, consider pausing at a beach or two, or at a restaurant in one of the lake-side villages.

At Le Bourget-du-Lac, the southern end of the lake is now a protected natural area that stands out for its biodiversity. This part of the stage is really easy, presenting a shift in altitude of just 2%. Finally, follow the Hyères River towards Chambéry.

Link to the Tour des Bauges à Vélo cycling circuit

From the lake-side Aix-les-Bains Riviera des Alpes, you can cycle off for Chambéry, Montmélian, Albertville and Annecy. This circuit takes you riding beside the foothills of the Parc Naturel Régional des Bauges (also designated a UNESCO Geopark), along a magical path beside the local mountains that makes for easy cycling. Dotted with vineyards, lakes and extremely scenic countryside, with the mountains forming the backdrop, the Tour des Bauges à Vélo is signposted and mostly follows the same tracks as La Belle Via cycle route. Along its length, enjoy taking your time to unearth natural, cultural and wine gems, all to be savoured at your own pace.
