Canals & intimate rivers

Start at La Nef des Machines (home to Nantes's famed giant mechanical elephant and more), in the northwest corner of the Ile de Nantes, a large island in the Loire in the centre of the city. This tour allows you to explore two branches of the great river. You'll see how here it's partly urban, partly countrified, riding on a circular route that can be affected by the tide. Enjoy views across Nantes and its surrounds, getting a feel for the lively city. If tackling the way as the sun is going down, you may catch a breathtaking sunset along the Loire Estuary. If you have time, book a visit to the Machines de l'île!

The route

Starting point: Les Machines de l'île. Making the most of Nantes Métropole's combined pedestrian / cycling network, this cycling outing leads you on a tour around the Ile de Nantes, a central island in the Loire. Our chosen direction for the descriptions is clockwise.

Places at which to take special care

- In pedestrian zones, please ride very slowly and carefully
- As the Loire is still tidal in these parts, during high tides, the water can sometimes cover some or all of the track, in which case make use of the road just above
- Slow down on paved and narrow stretches, and where there are hard turns
- It isn't possible to pass under Pirmil and Trois Continents Bridges
- Avoid passing under Anne de Bretagne Bridge, given the stairs
