

Tergnier / Ham

Somme Valley cycle route

At Tergnier, at the junction with the Scandibérique cycle route, the Véloroute Vallée de Somme, or Somme Valley cycle route, gets off to a gentle start, following the bucolic banks of the Canal de Saint-Quentin. Next, it traces its own way through cereal fields, passing pleasant villages with Art Deco features to spot, at Mennessis, Frières and Flavy. Continuing via the Etangs de Saint-Simon (a series of lakes that attract migrating birds), it repeatedly crosses the meandering path of the young, upper Somme River on the way to Ham, your first stopover town, set beside a meander. Pause to explore this place largely rebuilt after World War I, taking in its green spaces, the Jardin des Hardines and Parc Délicourt, and its historical remnants, notably the former castle and 12th-century church of Our Lady.

Cycle Route

From Tergnier to Mennessis, the cycle route follows the towpath beside the Canal de Saint-Quentin. At Mennessis Bridge, cyclists need to leave the canal-side way, as the towpath isn't usable here and is forbidden to cyclists. Our cycle route's unbroken signposting (green signs, the number 30 set against a white background) then leads you via pleasant, quiet secondary roads. While these have been chosen as traffic along them is light, do be aware that you may encounter motorized vehicles, particularly in autumn, when farmers work on the sugar beet crop.
