Welcome to the Itinérance Verte en Autunois-Morvan! Before heading off, make sure you visit Santenay's vineyards. A short way from the charming wine village of Santenay, a splendid greenway takes you along a former railway track, rising gently up the slopes to Nolay, with its attractive medieval heart and streets. Beyond Nolay, and especially from the viaducts of Rochabec and Cormet, enjoy magnificent views of the surrounding countryside and villages. To reach Epinac, after Châtillon Wood, you'll need to push hard on your pedals before you rediscover the peace of the greenway at the La Farge Stream.

The Route

The greenway is signposted and well laid out along 13.5km between Santenay and Epertully (Bois de Châtillon). The route is well surfaced along the former railway track between Santenay and Epinac. There are kilometre markers along the way. Stretches take you along slope-side tracks offering views of valley and vineyards. The viaducts of Cormot and Rochabec are each c.200m in length.
