Discover the Quiberon peninsula by bike from the dunes of Erdeven. Cycling along the wild coastline, you'll reach the peninsula and enter Quiberon for a break, in a bay cut off from the prevailing winds. For the return journey, climb aboard the "Tire-bouchon", the local train that runs all the way back to Auray.

The cycle route

From Erdeven / Étel to the Quiberon peninsula, safe country lanes lead you through the dunes, past the village of Sainte Barbe, the Bégo dunes and the Penthievre fort. Cycle along the D768 to cross the Penthievre isthmus. At Kerhostin, take the greenway along the "Tire-Bouchon" railroad line, then leave it 1 km further on to join the wild coast. Initially on road, then on greenway to Quiberon.
