

Vélocéan from St-Molf to Guérande

Vélocéan cycle route

Between St-Molf and Quimiac, this stage goes via a series of little canals serving extensive salt marshes, sometimes giving you the impression that you're riding on water! Not to be missed: the Pointe de Mesquer Headland and two detours, one to the Petite Cité de Caractère of Piriac-sur-Mer, the other to the port of La Turballe. Then you arrive at the splendid fortified medieval town of Guérande.

Cycle route

This stage is signposted 'Vélocéan'. Most of the way is along shared roads.

There are cycle lanes along the Domaine de Villeneuve (at Piriac-sur-Mer), in Mesquer, and to cross the D 33 road a bit before Coispéan.

Links

Piriac-sur-Mer can be reached by taking a 14km round trip from the junction with the Vélocéan route.

There is also a 20km cycling circuit by which to discover La Turballe.
